Even more power for the Metz mecablitz 64 AF-1

With the new P8 Power Pack, Metz is expanding its range of accessories with an external power supply pack for the Metz mecablitz 64 AF-1 digital high-end flash unit.

Zirndorf – The new Metz P8 Power Pack can be connected to the Metz mecablitz 64 AF-1 digital powerpack socket using a flash cable. The battery magazine of this high-performance powerpack can be fitted with at least four and a maximum of eight mignon cells. Unlike external power supply packs with built-in rechargeable batteries, the Metz solution allows the entire battery magazine to be removed and quickly replaced. In this way, the photographer saves valuable time and can immediately resume shooting. Using the sturdy travel bag, the powerpack can be carried in a bag, on a belt or affixed to the mounting thread under the camera. The Metz P8 Power Pack is made in Germany. The power supply is perfectly attuned to the flash unit and comes with overheating protection. By using the powerpack, photographers can take advantage of quicker recycling times and a higher flash output.

Quicker recycling times / longer flash enjoyment

Using the Metz P8 Power Pack reduces the charging and recycling time by approx. 50%. In addition, the photographer can take three times as many photographs without having to replace the power supply.
